Philip Roberts is Assistant Professor in teacher education (curriculum studies) at the University of Canberra, ACT.

His area of expertise is rural education, social justice and curriculum theory.

Philip was awarded the 2015 Colin Marsh Award for his quality contribution to the curriculum debate in his article ‘Curriculum for the country: The absence of the rural in a national curriculum’ published in Curriculum Perspectives, 34(1).