Dan Haesler has worked with young people for over 20 years. He also consults to education departments, schools, not-for-profits and corporate companies around issues of engagement and wellbeing in young people.

From being Head of Year 10 in one of England’s largest inner-city schools to his position of Head of House in a school in Sydney, throughout his career, Dan has worked with students, teachers, parents and wider communities from all walks of life and socioeconomic backgrounds.

He is passionate about equity in education and engaging our hardest-to-reach kids. You can read his regular School of Thought column in Australian Teacher Magazine.
